LOCAL ELECTRIC PLANT IN STATE WIDE MERGER

Keystone Power Corporation Becomes Part of System.

LINK IN BIG PROJECT

Control of the Keystone Power Corporation has been acquired by the American Water Works & Electric Co., Inc., with home offices in New York. Not so many months ago the Keystone Power Corporation acquired the State-Centre Electric Co., since taking charge of the plant and equipment in Centre and adjoining counties, improving the service in the territory in that brief space of time. The new merger, announcement of the negotiations of which was made in The Republican several weeks ago, may bring continued improvement in service. The negotiations were finally closed last week and announced on Saturday morning.

J. George Kaelber, of Rochester, N. Y., retains a large interest in the Keystone Power Corporation and is to remain as its president.

Arrangements have been made with the West Penn Power Co., one of the subsidiaries of The West Penn Co., which is also controlled by the American Water Works & Electric Co., whereby the Keystone Co. will be managed and operated by the West Penn organization.

Careful studies of the territory supplied by the Keystone Power Corporation have been made by representatives of the West Penn system and they have expressed themselves as being very optimistic concerning the future industrial growth of the territory. While definite plans for future enlargement of the local systems have not been worked out it is stated that the first aim of the new management will be to provide for the best quality of service to existing consumers and for increasing sources of power as fast as the market for using it can be developed.

There are remaining only a few links to be merged until there is developed a great power and electric system, a super-system as it has been termed during the several years the promoters have been engaged in bringing their project forward toward completion. Then this territory, extending from West Virginia to New York, will be served by a gigantic concern with all smaller companies as subsidiaries.

Will Enforce Quarantines.

At the meeting of the Bellefonte board of health held last Friday afternoon the policy to be followed during the coming year was considered and it was decided to strictly enforce all quarantine regulations. John Curtin, who has been secretary for years, resigned and will be succeeded by John Love, Esq., the change to become effective on April 1, 1923. The salary of Health Officer George Glenn was increased from five to ten dollars per month. This was done in all fairness to Mr. Glenn who has faithfully served and devoted much time to the work attending the office. He was complimented by the board recognizing his faithful and efficient service in this manner. The salary increase while apparently large, is justifiable inasmuch as those in nearby—townships are said to draw even more than $10 per month and apparently have less to look after than Mr. Glenn.

No Federal Building Now.

Holding down appropriations so that the county may get on a basis of doing business with expenses within the income means that Bellefonte won't get a new federal building this year. Representative Jones, of Bradford, requested $125,000 for a site and building. More than $7,000,000 was requested for construction of public buildings that must go over until later. Among the towns are Barnesboro, $60,000; Clearfield, $150,000; DuBois, $50,000, increasing an amount of $85,000 previously granted in 1913 to $135,000; Philipsburg, $125,000; Pittsburgh, $2,000,000; State College, $35,000, increasing to $110,000 funds granted in 1913; Sunbury, $100,000, Tyrone, $125,000.

Alleged Moonshiner Jailed.

Thomas Zavada, of Penn 4 mine, near Philipsburg, in default of bail fixed at $800, was brought to Bellefonte on Sunday and placed in the county jail. Zavada is charged with violations of the Prohibition law. He was given a hearing before Justice of the Peace Byron, of Philipsburg, and was also charged with assault and battery as well as making moonshine beverage.

ATTENDED STATE SHOW

Farmers of Centre County Active Participants.

Centre County farmers who attended the State Farm Products Show at Harrisburg last week were as follows:

Penna. Furnace—J. M. Campbell, A. C. Kepler and wife, and I. G. Harpster.

Pine Grove Mills—John G. Miller.

State College—J. W. Miller, J. J. Markle, J. C. Thompson, J. S. Dale.

Port Matilda—D. H. Way, Reeder Patton.

Howard—J. Will Mayes.

Bellefonte—J. B. Payne, Thomas Beaver.

Spring Mills—Prof. Bennett, Thomas Hosterman.

Centre Hall—W. F. Rishel R. P. Campbell, Harry Bartges.

Rebersburg—Harold Brungart.

Millheim—Roy Vonada, Lester Beaver.

Hublersburg—Melvin Miller.

W. F. Rishel, of Centre Hall, sold two Berkshire gilts at the sale on Tuesday.

A. C. Kepler, of Pine Grove Mills, bought an exceptionally good Duroc Jersey sow at the first State Consignment sale at Harrisburg on Thursday. This is a richly bred Otion Cherry King sow with an unusually good show record. The wisdom of the purchase was emphasized on Friday when this sow took third in a class of fourteen that were sold at the sale. This is the third high class Duroc sow that Mr. Kepler has purchased within the past few months. The other two were bought from D. G. Arnold, of Reedsville, early in the winter.

The Centre County Sheep and Wool Growers' association won 2nd and 3rd in exhibit of three-eighths wool and 4th in county exhibit of medium wools.

Mary H. Miller vs J. C. Johnstonbaugh. Appeal.

William P. Bell, Jr. vs D. R. Wilson. Trespass, not guilty.

W. H. Sortman vs Charles C. Walters. Appeal.

Valentine Property Retained.

The rumor that there had been a disagreement between the Valentines and the officials of the Evangelical church when the latter undertook to take possession of the property at the N. E. corner of High and Spring streets, after it was announced that the deal for the sale of the property had been closed, was confirmed as correct this week by the pastor, Rev. Reed O. Steely, who said, "Rather than have trouble with the Valentines in taking possession we dropped the matter." However, it has been learned upon good authority that the plans to put up a new and modern church and Sunday School have not been dropped. Details as to the new plans could not be secured for publication this week but it is likely they will be announced in the near future.

Dance for Baseball Benefit.

How many folks want to see Bellefonte have a good baseball team? An organization to promote this project has scheduled a dance to be held in the armory at Bellefonte on Friday evening. The admission is $1 for couples and 50 cents for women. Music will be furnished by the Academy orchestra. Spend a delightful evening at the armory and boost the baseball club.

PROF. JOHN. L. M'KEE DEP. SECY. AGRICULTURE

Another State College Man Recognized for Efficiency.

PENN STATE HONORED

Announcement was made at Harrisburg on Monday of the appointment of Prof. John L. McKee, a State College graduate, as Deputy Secretary of Agriculture. The selection is viewed generally as a tribute to the efficiency of State College in its course of agricultural instruction. Prof. McKee will have direct charge of the scientific work in the Department of Agriculture during the term of Governor Pinchot.

Prof. Fred Rasmussen, who recently retired as Secretary of Agriculture at Harrisburg, was prominently identified with State College at the time of his appointment by Governor Sproul. E. K. Hibshman, who was seriously considered by Governor Pinchot for Secretary of Agriculture before the appointment was given to Frank Willits, is also a State College man. The prominence with which Penn State men figure in the development of agriculture, and its various branches, in Pennsylvania, illustrates the importance of the work being done by Statet College.

Prof. McKee, who is 38 years old, is a native of Clarion County. His father and grandfather were practical farmers. Following his graduation at Penn State, Prof. McKee engaged in soil survey work in the State for the federal government. When State College started its agricultural extension work in 1912 Prof. McKee was one of five men selected to undertake the experiment. He initiated cost production records in cow-testing associations now generally used throughout the State. For nine years he served as county farm agent in Washington County. More recently he has been actively identified with agricultural extension work at State College.

Acting Highway Commissioner Biles has resigned, effective March 1st. His successor is W. L. Connel, of Philadelphia.

FINGER CUT OFF.

L. H. Gettig, Bellefonte Meat Dealer, Meets with Accident.

L. H. Gettig, of Bellefonte, widely known meat dealer, had the misfortune to get the end of his second finger on the right hand in contact with the rapidly turning knives of a sausage meat cutter on Monday afternoon while at work in his shop and the finger was cut off back of the nail. Mr. Gettig was cutting meat and he noticed a piece slide over toward the knife. He was familiar with the operation of the machine but attempted to move the meat and in so doing touched the knife, which has a very keen cutting edge,

The wound bled freely and he promptly went to a doctor's office, where the piece of his finger was put back on and the flow of blood stopped. Mr. Gettig then went to his home. It is believed that the finger may heal in due time and that nothing serious will result if complications do not develop.

New Quarantines.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Witmer on High street was quarantined this week, Pauline having the scarlet fever. This is the only home quarantined to date for this dread disease. Pauline's friends hope she may soon recover.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Shefler was quarantined Monday morning. Their daughter Miss Eleanore has the mumps.

The Thomas Beaver home has been quarantined for chicken-pox, little Jimmy being the lively patient.

The Kiske home on East Beaver street was quarantined on Monday for chicken pox.

White Rock Officers.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the White Rock Quarries company on Monday the officers were re-elected as follows: R. H. Richards, president; W. Fred Reynolds, vice president; L. H. Schaffer, secretary. Ray C. Noll was elected treasurer to succeed John Curtin. The board of directors was re-elected.

Road Supervisors Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Centre County Road Supervisors association will be held in the Court House in Bellefonte on Wednesday, Feb. 7. Officers will be elected and several addresses made.

HANSEN SAYS THIS TOWN MUST HAVE MORE HOMES

Business Expansion Depends on Solving Housing Problem.

NEED IS KEENLY FELT

Superintendent M. C. Hansen, of the Sutton-Abramsen Engineering Co. plant on South Potter street, says Bellefonte must have more houses if the town is to grow. Said Mr. Hansen:

"We have $20,000 to $30,000 worth of new machinery to place in the near future and within six weeks from now our plant should be enlarged to twice its present size. We need men right now; ought to have ten good machinists, and could use fifteen. But we can't get them to come here because there are no houses. The business men or somebody else must do something to provide homes for the workmen or the town can not grow as it would under favorable conditions. There isn't any use of one firm taking its men from another firm in the same town. That doesn't get us anywhere. What we need is more homes for more workmen."

This indicates a problem that has been felt keenly in Bellefonte for several years and which has had consideration by the Associated Business Men but is still unsolved. The healthy condition of the local industries is apparent from reports from various business men and other sources. The Abramsen plant has been operating full time and had a night force recently put to work.

The labor shortage is noted in several plants, and there doesn't seem to be any solution other than to secure more houses for rent. Unless some feasible project is launched whereby homes can be provided for the workmen at a reasonable rent that will also yield a fair margin for the promoter, it seems impossible for Bellefonte to expand very much.

MAY AFFECT ROCKVIEW

Commission Recommends Against Consolidating Penitentiaries.

A commission chosen by Governor Pinchot to investigate and report upon prisons and various penal institutions in the State, has filed a recommendation that the plan to consolidate the Eastern and Western penitentiaries into one large prison at Rockview be abandoned. The Eastern penitentiary management has been opposing such a consolidation ever since the plan was first proposed. To carry out the recommendation of the commission it will be necessary for the Legislature to repeal the act providing for consolidation.

Owing to the present financial condition of the State, the commission has also recommended that the cell building, now under construction at Rockview, be completed and that all other building plans be abandoned, for the time being, at least.

Another recommendation of the commission is that a sanitarium for convicts suffering from tuberculosis be erected either at Rockview or Farview. It is proposed that inmates of all prisons in the State so afflicted be confined in one sanitarium and thereby guard against other prisoners contracting the disease.

BANK HEARING IN MARCH.

Receiver of Centre County Bank Redeems Outstanding Notes.

A hearing in the Centre County Bank matter, involving the question of ownership at the time the bank failed, has been scheduled by the United States Court of Appeals, at Philadelphia, for the first week in March.

During the last ten days, Attorney Ivan Walker, temporary receiver, has redeemed all outstanding notes, given by the bank, which were held principally by Bellefonte and Philipsburg banks. This required the payment to such banks of upward of $24,000, the transactions being first authorized by Federal Court Judge Witmer. The purpose in redeeming the notes was to wipe out all interest bearing charges against the depositors, and at the same time recover for them possession of various securities, chiefly Whiterock stock, which had been put up by the Centre County Bank as collateral for loans.

Bank Files Appeal.

The First National Bank of Spring Mills, against which a verdict for $5083.-88 was rendered recently by a jury in the Centre County courts, in favor of the Fidelity Title & Trust Co., of Pittsburgh, has filed an appeal to the State Supreme Court.

MUSICAL COMEDY.

To Be Given by High School Glee Club, Feb. 7th and 8th.

Final rehearsals for "Wi Hung's Tea House", the Japanese Fantasy and Musical Comedy selected by the Glee Club are in progress to whip into shape the best presentation this organization has ever given.

"A Box of Dolls," a little sketch by twelve clever tiny tots from the grades, both buildings, will be given between acts and is in itself worth more than the price of the ticket. Do not miss them for they are a real treat. Besides this there are fan, parasol, and lantern drills that are very picturesque.

Arrangements have been made with large Philadelphia and Pittsburgh theatrical concerns for elaborate stage settings and costumes. Miss Mary McSuley has contributed a dainty Tea House that will add considerably to the charm of the oriental setting of the first act. The Manual Training department has a real Rickishaw under way.

The colored posters in the various shop windows are the work of Miss Margaret Buser, of Altoona and are calling forth considerable favorable comment.

The Glee Club promises many times the low cost of your ticket, hopes for two packed houses, and would like to put put out the "Standing Room Only" sign each night.

LARGE MID-YEAR CLASS.

Graduated from Penn State This Week,—Some Given Degrees.

Mid-year graduation exercises were held at State College this week when approximately 70 men and women were granted diplomas by the Penna. State College. This is one of the largest mid-year classes ever to be graduated by the college. Six of the graduates were women, while a total of five advanced degrees were also conferred at the exercises.

President John M. Thomas conferred the degrees and also made the address to the graduating class. The exercises were informal, the formal commencement always taking place in June. Several graduates were members of former classes whose graduation was delayed because of military service.

The schools of engineering and liberal arts claimed the bulk of the mid-year graduates, each having a total of 24. Agriculture came next with 15, while mines had 3, natural science 2, and the department of home economics 1. Eleven of the graduates had completed the course in commerce and finance, with industrial engineering next in line with eight graduates.

Among those who received degrees were: course of commerce and finance: W. F. Leitzell, State College; course in education and pyschology: D. K. Adams, Milesburg, and H. F. Babcock, State College.

Meeting of "Y" Board.

At a meeting of the board of the Y. M. C. A. on Friday evening S. S. Aplin was re-elected general secretary. Means of more economical operation without seriously interfering with the success of the past year were considered. It was decided to discontinue the services of a paid physical director and local talent has been appointed to train the classes. Mrs. Robert Walker, a graduate of Wellesley College and trained in athletic instruction, will have the Y. W. work. Prof. E. B. Malcomson, of the Academy faculty, will have the Students and Juniors classes. Harry Mentzer, who has been the physical director, likes Bellefonte and will likely remain here. A members banquet is scheduled for the latter part of February, when the board meets again, and election of officers and committees will be in order at this time.

Measles in Beech Creek.

Measles are so prevalent in Beech Creek as to reach almost the epidemic stage it is reported. This is also true in the township of Beech Creek. The Hubbard school, in that district, on Friday had an attendance of only seven pupils out of the twenty-one enrolled. The measles are of a mild form but care is being taken as danger of pneumonia as a follow-up is realized.

Measles in Nittany Valley.

Many families in Nittany valley have been quarantined recently on account of measles. The schools at Hublersburg were closed on Monday for this reason. There are also many who are suffering from grippe. Not all the cases are mild either as some have been seriously ill from both measles and grippe.

Thomas Mosier Re-Appointed.

Thomas Mosier, game protector in Centre County, was reappointed last week.

DABBLING IN FINANCE LANDS MAN IN JAIL

Peter Hitt Accused of Obtaining Money by Forgery.

FACES TERM IN "PEN"

Dabbling in finance and securing funds by doubtful and illegal methods has apparently brought Peter Hitt face to face with a term in the Western penitentiary.

Hitt was placed in the Centre County jail in Bellefonte last week. His dealings in high finance are alleged to have covered a period of several months following his suspension from the police force in Clearfield.

The last straw in the stack that caused the downfall of the erstwhile police man and dabbler in finance came when information was made against Hitt by Theodore C. Jackson, cashier of the Moshannon National Bank of Philipsburg. Hitt was charged with securing quite a large sum of cash from the bank named on December 26th by presenting a note containing the signatures of Elpha Hitt, his wife, and Wm. Pelton, his father-in-law, the endorsements being claimed as forged.

The information was made before Thomas Byron, justice of the peace in Philipsburgh. He issued a warrant for Hitt's arrest and it was served in Woodland. Hitt was given a hearing and, failing to secure bail fixed in the sum of $1,000, was landed in jail.

It was several years ago when Hitt accepted a place on the Philipsburg police force, being night policeman. He assisted in taking a truckload of booze in an alley a short time after working as night policeman and this created a lot of publicity for him. Soon after he went to Clearfield to become chief of police and had held this position until several months ago.

It is said that he went to Pittsburgh then and began cashing checks with no funds in bank. After passing checks to an amount exceeding $100, according to report, he was naturally caught in his game and was obliged to make good in order to get the matter settled and prevent further trouble.

It seems that this was not a memorable enough lesson and that Hitt again went about to other places, representing himself as chief of police of Clearfield, making a favorable impression and securing funds in various questionable ways. Thus, it is said, there have been numerous letters coming to Clearfield for the chief of police, asking that Hitt make good for checks cashed and returned with the mark, "No Funds".

In nearby towns, according to report, Hitt secured $30 in Lock Haven by getting $10 from Sheriff Thomas Johnson and $20 from a drug store; in Tyrone were several complaints and in one instance Sheriff Harry Dukeman, of Bellefonte made him make good for a check for $10. Then, it is further alleged that Hitt operated in Cambria county and passed worthless checks at Johnstown, for which he was taken to Ebensburg jail. In some manner, this was settled and he got back to Philipsburg, only to get into the clutches of the law again at the instance of the charges preferred by Cashier Jackson. Thus, even before he had landed in the Bellefonte jail, Hitt had made quite a reputation, however doubtful, in his twists in the money kingdom.

Physicians Hold Meeting.

At the January meeting of the Centre County Medical Society the following practicing physicians were elected officers: H. S. Brancht, Spring Mills, president; C. S. Musser, Aaronsburg, 1st vice president; H. H. Longwell, Centre Hall, 2nd vice president; O. W. McIntyre, Howard, secretary—treasurer; J. L. Seibert, Bellefonte, reporter; P. H. Dale, State College; J. R. Barlet, Pleasant Gap; J. M. Locke, Bellefonte—censors. Committee on public policy and legislation—David Dale, W. U. Irwin and J. M. Locke, Bellefonte.

Soup Scalded Boy.

Matthias Walker, who resides about one mile west of Howard, was obliged to summon a physician last Friday evening when his 6-yr. old son ran against his mother, who was carrying a bowl of hot soup, which spilled and struck the lad about the face, neck and hands. He was very painfully scalded. Some of the boiling hot soup entered his ear but whether in sufficient quantity to affect his hearing could not be learned at this time. Unless his hearing should be affected, his recovery in due time is anticipated.

HOUSE OF DREAMS

DOROTHY R. SCOVILLE

(©, 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

The villagers all wondered why anyone should want to build in such a lonely place. "But, then, them artists are queer folks, anyway," was their verdict when they saw Hall Crane and observed his ways.

The cosey little bungalow that came to nestle in the pine woods at Cauldron Cove was a good half mile from the little fishing village, and there was no one living nearby save old Mat Coles, who was deaf and a hermit and whom people rarely saw.

When the cottage was nearly finished, Rhea Lowe came to the village. She was slender and golden haired, with brooding gray eyes. She was tired of the city and its ways, and wished a quiet place to write and to rest. Shortly after she arrived the old schooner, hauled up on the edge of Cauldron Cove, by the pine grove, began to show signs of rehabilitation. The boat was made tight and warm. Cheery curtains showed through the portholes and smoke curled up from the tiny chimney. So the girl came to live in the schooner house. A gay little sign swung from the bowsprit one day. "Ship o' Dreams" it had been christened.

A few days after the christening Hall Crane came to live in his little place. And strangely enough a gay little sign appeared there also, "House o' Dreams" had come to life. The villagers smiled wisely and watched and waited.

One morning as Rhea Lowe was singing at her work a firm knock sounded at the door of the forward cabin. She admitted Hall Crane.

"Miss Lowe, I believe?" he said, with polite coolness.

"I believe you have the advantage," she suggested.

"Hall Crane. I own the bungalow up the beach," he answered. "I've come to make a business deal with you. I desire to be alone here and I do not want neighbors.

"Will you please name your price on this place?" he asked with impersonal finality.

Miss Lowe's eyes gleamed dangerously. "I do not care to sell, and, furthermore, neither do I care to be troubled with neighbors. And at least you could be original with the name of your house," she added, with a flare of anger.

His eyes narrowed. "The name of my house was settled upon long before I observed yours." In the end they parted with mutual dislike.

Then one morning Hall Crane received a note from Rhea Lowe. "You may have my Ship o' Dreams" it read. "I won't need it any longer."

At first he gave a grunt of satisfaction. Then he began to wonder. Suddenly he put on his coat and went out of the house toward the Ship o' Dreams. He went quickly up the gangway and knocked. No answer. He pushed open the door. The cosey little cabin was empty. A cold fear gripped him as he came up on deck.

He instinctively looked toward the rock that hung over the cove. There, facing the sea, was a wind-blown figure. He ran up the beach and as she moved toward the edge of the rock he gave a shout of alarm.

"You mustn't do a thing like that. It's wrong," he rebuked sternly. She remained silent, but her lips curled with scorn. "Er—really, there's no reason for being so rash, and—" Then he kissed her.

"Mr. Crane!" she gasped.

"Er—Rhea—please forgive me, Miss Lowe," he said stiffly.

She looked down at the sand to hide the imps of laughter in her eyes. "Yes, of course. It's really of no consequence, anyway. Nothing is," she finished in a discouraged voice.

He watched her, puzzled. "Oh, but there are worth while things in the world still!" he hastened to assure her. "There is love," he said in a low voice.

"Is there?" she mocked. "Well, some never find it."

"In a House o' Dreams they would."

"Perhaps."

They were at the ship now. "Good-by and thank you," she said as she went inside. He went away with a strange sense of having been cheated, of vague disappointment. He had forgotten to speak of her note. But that did not seem important to him now. Then he realized that his House o' Dreams was a failure.

On the boat Rhea was also thinking things over. She had not intended to jump off the rock at all. It was merely a place of vantage to watch the surf. But when she realized that he thought that she was about to jump, she let him believe so, in hope that it would awaken him, but the awakening had been of short duration.

He evidently was hopeless. And she really did like him. The city was such a huge, clamoring place. She didn't want to leave her Ship o' Dreams—and Hall Crane. Suddenly she felt discouraged and lonely. A tear crept down her cheek. At that moment the newly-awakened Hall Crane came in.

House o' Dreams has two tenants now and the villagers smile and say, "I told you so." While back in New York the Art club members and the Writers' circle talk of how contented and happy the two cynics seem away out there—remote from everything.

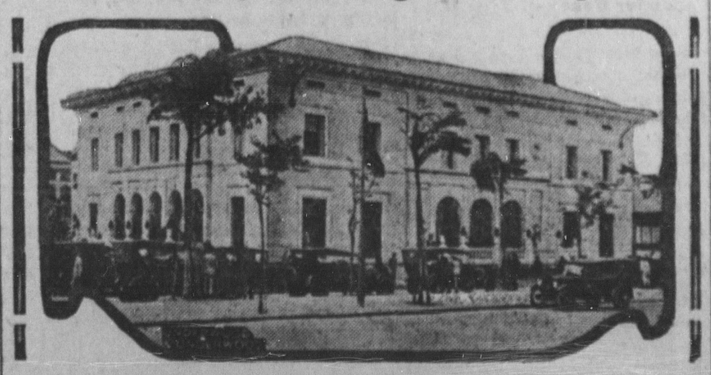
Our Embassy Building in Rio Opened



View of the permanent United States government building of the Brazilian Centennial exposition at Rio de Janeiro, at the recent formal dedication. The building is of Portuguese colonial design and of stucco over brick, with foundation walls, quoins, entrance arches, and window facings of native granite in a mauve gray. It was designed to house not only the government exhibit but to serve as United States embassy after the exposition.

Heat Injurious to Books.

It is undeniably true that the dry heat which we use in our American homes is ruinous to furniture, books and pictures. This, of course, can be avoided by forcing damp air into the room or by using pans of water concealed on the raidator. But no matter how dampened, a direct draft of heat will play havoc with furnishings and the house builder should avoid it.

Women Little Thought Of.

It appears to be a rule in China that the richer a man is the more he separates himself from his womankind. A prosperous merchant never eats at the table with his wife and daughters; his and his son's food must be prepared separately and served in another room.

Sorry She Spoke.

While going to visit my girl friend's home, to which I had never been, I had a strange experience. She came to the car to meet me and the first house we came to I said: "For heaven's sake, who lives in this little barn?" She led me into the house. It was her home.—Exchange.

Declares Tanlac Ended Indigestion, Chest Pains and Palpitation—Lost Strength Restored.

"Tanlac has improved my general condition ten times more than I anticipated," recently stated Herbert A. Guptill, a well-known school teacher of Kezar Falls, Maine.

"My trouble began with a sudden loss of strength. Almost everything I ate disagreed with me and caused a sickening sensation that remained with me for hours. For months I found breathing difficult on account of indigestion, and had such chest pains and palpitation I thought my heart was affected. I also suffered greatly from headaches and nervousness, seldom slept well, and felt tired and worn-out all the time.

"Since taking Tanlac no kind of food hurts me and I have a wonderful appetite. I have gained ten pounds, breathe freely, sleep perfectly, and feel as strong and well as ever in my life. Tanlac is certainly a superior medicine."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Over 35 million bottles sold.—Advertisement.

Centenaries in 1923.

It is part of the business of editors to keep track of centenaries. There has already been a searching for the centenaries falling due in 1923, with no very impressive results. One or two world celebrities were born in 1823—Renan, for instance—but the others mentioned are second raters. The Boston Transcript makes considerable of the coming centenary of Francis Parkman, but that is because he was a Bostonian who would still have the Transcript read to him were he now alive.—Springfield Republican.

Mrs. Edward Pinson

Wheelersburg, Ohio—"My wife had pneumonia about six years ago and it left her with a dreadful cough. At night she would cough until she was exhausted. She could get no rest or sleep. Her stomach was so bad that she could not retain food. She went down in flesh until she was merely skin and bones. I had tried many doctors and medicines but still she grew worse. At last a neighbor who had relied upon Dr. Pierce's medicines for years, told me about Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and before she had taken all of the first bottle she began to improve. By the time she had the third bottle taken her cough had entirely stopped. She gained in flesh and weighed twenty-nine pounds more than before she took the 'Discovery.'"—Edw. Pinson.

TO AID DISABLED VETERANS

Mrs. C. R. Edwards, Boston, Wife of Major General, Helps Unfortunate Men Help Themselves.

Helping the disabled war veteran to help himself is the hobby of Mrs. Clarence R. Edwards of Boston, wife of Major General Edwards, who commanded the Twenty-sixth division in France, and a prominent member of the American Legion auxiliary.

Mrs. Edwards.

One of Mrs. Edwards' most important achievements has been the founding of an exchange in Boston where disabled veterans may sell the products they manufacture during the long days spent in hospitals recovering from war wounds and disabilities.

Starting April 10 with a capital of $2,000 contributed by friends, Mrs. Edwards hired an ex-service man as manager and opened the exchange in a downtown location. Success attended the venture from the start and it has put thousands of dollars in the pockets of needy World war heroes.

The exchange takes all articles on consignment and when they are sold, the money is forwarded to the hospital or to the individual patient at the end of the month.

The disabled men have exhibited an unusual versatility in the articles produced for sale, according to Mrs. Edwards. "One boy makes little canoes and paints them in pretty colors," Mrs. Edwards stated. "In one month we have sold $75 worth of canoes ranging in price from 85 cents to $1.50. String belts, girdles and curtain pulls are very popular. A very good market has been developed for a veteran who makes hand-woven homespuns. Jute rugs for piazzas and woven rugs for bathrooms are also favorites. All kinds of hammered jewelry and leather covers and cases are good sellers."

Mrs. Edwards' exchange has been authorized by the national convention of the American Legion auxiliary to sell articles made by veterans in hospitals of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Pennsylvania and the District of Columbia.

HE IS VETERAN OF TWO WARS

Wisconsin Legion Man, Now National Vice Commander, Was in Spanish-American and World Wars.

Dr. Edward J. Barrett of Sheboygan, Wis., national vice commander of the American Legion, is a veteran of both the Spanish-American and World wars.

Dr. E. J. Barrett.

Born in Wooster, O., Doctor Barrett was graduated from the University of Wooster and later from the school of medicine at the University of Cincinnati. He served as house physician at the Palmer House in Chicago until the outbreak of the Spanish-American war, when he was commissioned a major in the Second regiment, United States volunteer engineers, remaining with that organization during its stay in Honolulu.

During the Philippine insurrection, Doctor Barrett was assistant surgeon of the Forty-first volunteer infantry, remaining in the islands until 1901. Thousands of wounded American doughboys remember the work of Doctor Barrett when he was in command of Fox Hills hospital at Staten Island, and later when he was chief of hospitals at the port of embarkation at Hoboken, N. J., during the World war.

Doctor Barrett commanded the Legion post at Sheboygan in 1920 and served as commander of the Wisconsin department and national executive committeeman in 1921-1922, in addition to his work as a member of the Legion's national rehabilitation committee.

Case for an Expert.

Mr. Swivel was much perturbed to find that the three pounds of meat which he had purchased for dinner had mysteriously disappeared. His wife, aiding in the search and noticing what she took to be a guilty look on the face of the family cat, pointed to it, and said:

"There's the meat."

"Why, no," objected Swivel, "that little thing couldn't get away with three pounds of meat. Still, let's weigh her and find out."

They did so. The scales registered an even three pounds.

"Yes," he admitted in puzzled tones, "there's the meat all right, but where's the cat?"—American Legion Weekly.

AUXILIARY DOES GREAT WORK

Department of Minnesota One of the Most Active Organizations; Membership Is Strong.

The department of Minnesota has many distinctive features which mark it as one of the leading organizations of the American Legion auxiliary in social activities, welfare work, and organization plans. The auxiliary membership of the Minnesota auxiliary is 80 per cent that of the Legion, and all present efforts are being concentrated in making that membership 100 per cent.

A unique plan for bringing the "bachelor" posts to time, has been conceived by the "married posts and auxiliaries." Their location will be broadcast by radio all over the state of Minnesota and the auxiliary will mobilize and march upon their strongholds, not with sword and gun, but with the same tender devotion bestowed upon the boys in 1917 and 1918, and will prove to the refractory posts the utter futility of longer opposing the inevitable.

The poppies sold last year by the Minnesota auxiliary members were made by the hospitalized ex-service men, under direction of the auxiliary committees appointed for the purpose, at a profit of more than seven thousand dollars to the disabled. The state hospitalization committee made the statement that the good accomplished in lifting the morale of these men by giving them this work to do could not be measured in money.

Minnesota auxiliary has a welfare fund named for the first department president of the auxiliary in the United States, Doctor Helen Hughes Heilscher of Mankato, Minnesota, who is now serving on the national hospitalization committee. This fund, amounting to $5,000 last year, was practically exhausted during the year but the committee is constantly being reimbursed for these expenditures.

Minnesota auxiliary is fostering another project, which as yet has not been considered by any other state; that of "Veteransville" where ex-service men are helped to begin life anew by being assisted in buying land on the installment plan. The auxiliary intends that this project shall be the best of its kind in the United States and will encourage, support and assist in every way whenever necessary.

Minnesota auxiliary is proud to be a part of an organization, with a national president who is internationally known, because of her ability and accomplishments, and who has given up all other interests to serve the auxiliary for one year. Theodore Roosevelt said of Doctor Kate Waller Barrett: "She is one of the most useful women in the United States."

PRAISE FOR YOUNG AMERICAN

Legion Americanism Director Warm in Compliments for Philip Mosely, Essay Winner.

Philip E. Mosely of Westfield, Mass., winner in his state of the American Legion's national essay contest on the subject "How Can the American Legion Best Serve the Nation?" has received the praise of Garland W. Powell, Legion Americanism director, for his services in Americanizing foreigners in his home town.

Philip E. Mosely.

Young Mosely speaks French and Spanish and has a reading knowledge of Italian and Russian. During his spare time while he was in high school Mosely started and conducted Americanism classes for Spaniards in Westfield. He has practiced the help which he preached in his essay for the Legion contest.

Mosely was valedictorian of his high school class and was never absent nor tardy. Out of school hours Mosely raised chickens, fired furnaces and worked in stores until he had saved about $600 besides providing all his own spending money.

Entering Harvard college last fall, Mosely obtained a scholarship which pays his tuition for the first year.

"The record of Mr. Mosely is typical of the high character of the state winners in our essay contest," Mr. Powell stated. "The American Legion is proud of its younger brothers who have done so much to carry out its ideals."

State-winning essays will be judged in the national contest by John J. Tigert, United States commissioner of education; E. E. Brown, former national commissioner of education, and S. S. McClure, the publisher. National prizes are: First, $750; second, $500; third, $250; the money to be used as scholarships. They were awarded by Hanford MacNider, past national commander of the Legion.

Legion Will Never Die.

Yes, the big convention is over and we have a new national commander who looks to us like a real man. And the American Legion is safe for another year. For that matter the American Legion will be safe for sixty years to come or in other words as long as there is one Buddy left alive the organization will live.—Benton Review, Fowler, Ind.

She Forgave Him for Being Rich

L. Gaston Boissonault, Jr., son of the inventor of the detectograph, Gaston Boissonault, a wealthy business man of New York, went to the Adirondacks a few months ago looking for a change from the ordinary routine of his life. He took a job as carpenter on a house that was being built. He met Miss Katherine O'Brien of Saranac Lake, an eighteen-year-old beauty. They fell in love and shortly after married. Then young Boissonault confessed to his bride that he was the son of a wealthy man, and the bride forgave him for being wealthy. Here they are out for a little fun in the snow.

JEAN IS PRACTICE BABY

Jean Elizabeth Christie, a real nine-months-old baby, rules the home economics house at South Dakota State college, Brookings, S. D., where all young women specializing in that department must spend one term keeping house and taking charge of Jean Elizabeth before they can receive degrees. State college is one of the few schools in the Middle West to furnish a real baby for home economics students. The appearance of the child indicates that she is thriving under the treatment given her at the practice house.

Little Chance to Escape.

That there is little chance to escape from paying the penalty when one is punished was emphasized by the case of Sam Andreas, convicted in Blair County, to serve three to four years in the Western penitentiary for dynamiting. He made a sensational escape from the Hollidaysburg jail, where he was held prior to taking him to Pittsburgh. He was out for some time and the Blair County Commissioners had offered a reward for his capture, fearing he might make good his getaway. But he had only left the county and got as far as Huntingdon County when caught near Alexandria. He had made a start for New Orleans, it was alleged, but so closely is the net spread when a convict escapes that it is almost impossible to successfully elude it.

W. C. T. U. MEETING

Special Observance of Third Anniversary of Prohibition.

In observing the third anniversary of Prohibition, a special meeting was held under auspices of the W. C. T. U. in Petrikin Hall on Sunday afternoon, Jan. 21st. The president, Miss R. N. Rhoads, was in charge of the meeting.

Brief addresses were made by the Reverends Young, Evans, McKelvey, Smith, Steeley and two young college men from the Penn State Young People's branch of the W. C. T. U., Nelson Hibshman and Charles Dickerhoff. A pleasing feature was the song by twenty to thirty boys and girls. Members of the Loyal Temperance Legion were entertained by Mrs. Steeley with a sled ride on the 9th followed by a social at "Mountain View" at West Linnn street.

State Livestock Census.

The United States Agricultural Department reports a livestock census on Pennsylvania farms and comparison of figures of 1921, which showed 5,000 fewer horses on hand January 1st, 1923, 1000 more mules, 21,000 more milk cows, 25,000 more cattle, 1000 fewer sheep, and 57,000 more swine. Average prices per head, January 1, 1923, follows: Horses, $11; mules, $125; milk cows, $60; other cattle, $29; sheep, $7.10; swine, $16. Compared with January 1, 1921, prices, the average per head showed these reductions: Horses, $11; mules, $16; milk cows, $17; other cattle, $8; sheep, 40 cents; swine $1 50. It is estimated that the average yield of milk per cow in Pennsylvania the past year was 5,800 pounds, and the average number of days that cows were milked was 312.

OVER THE COUNTY

A young son of Gross Shook was run down by an automobile near his home in Penn Hall recently and escaped serious injury, quite likely because of the deep snow. The car was occupied by Dr. G. S. Frank and his chauffeur, of Millheim.

Ira Shultz, of Spring Bank, held a shooting match at that place on a recent Saturday afternoon and the Millheim marksmen carried away honors in eight out of a total of fifteen prizes. This indicates that Millheim marksmen are champions in Penn's valley.

Those who are inrerested in eclipses may keep their paragraph for a reference. Four eclipses are scheduled as follows: Partial eclipse of moon on March 2, visible here; annular eclipse of sun, March 16 and 17, visible here; partial eclipse of moon, August, visible here; total eclipse of the sun, partial eclipse visible here, Sept. 10.

Lester and Lewis, sons of Roy Garbrick, who reside west of Centre Hall, made several novel trips to Centre Hall over the mountain recently. The boys are skilled in mechanical working and fitted a sled with an engine, such as used in automobiles, properly attaching propellers on the airplane type. With this newest mode of travel they literally sailed over the road from their home to the nearby town with apparent ease. They were able to get all the speed desired, too, and yet made the curves with little trouble. Perhaps in a few years their first model may be improved and put to practical use in a horseless sleigh.

The Rebersburg I. O. O. F. annual banquet was held in the lodge hall on Friday evening.

Those early harbingers of spring, the bluebirds and the robins, are reported to be with us, but in very small numbers. However, tomorrow is Ground-hog day and many will fix their weather calculations on the shadow results.

A rather unwonted distinction is being placed upon the condition of the road between Pleasant Gap and Centre Hall. It is claimed to be the worst stretch of road met by several Penn's valley young men who went to Detroit recently to drive in Dodge automobiles for local trade.

Walter B. Gray, Altoona hunter who was recently sentenced to serve not less than one year in the county jail at Bellefonte, was released after serving nine days of his sentence. He said he had already made plans for the purchase of a knitting machine and outfit for the purpose of knitting socks and earning a livelihood if he had been obliged to serve the entire time. When Gray was sentenced it was thought likely he would be given a parole on furnishing Judge Quigley with a petition properly drawn and satisfactory to Willis Woodring, the young man from Port Matilda whom Gray was accused of accidentally shooting while hunting in Halfmoon Twp. on Nov. 3, 1921. This was largely due to the fact that Gray has a large family dependent upon him for support and that his aged mother is quite ill at his home, while the circumstances of the shooting seemed to be entirely accidental.

Wall Street to South Ferry

By H. IRVING KING

(©, 1922, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Charley Fosdick was a clerk down in the financial district and his boarding house was well over on the West side in the Twenties. He was a frugal chap with a savings bank account and a determination to get ahead. Charley was from Oakdale, Mass., a small town, but he was not a bit afraid of New York, which was a strong point in favor of his succeeding. Don't think that he was "fresh" or unheeding of the fierce competition he was up against.

The firm of Catherwood & Robbins, by which Charley was employed, was run by old man Jameson, a white side-whiskered autocrat. Robbins had died years and years ago; Catherwood had died about two years before Charley came to the firm, and the business was continued by his heirs, two sons and a daughter, whom no one seemed to know much about and who were never seen at the office. Now, every day at a certain hour, punctually to the minute by Trinity church clock, for he was a methodical person, Charley left the office, walked up Wall street, turned down Broadway and proceeded to South Ferry, where he took the Ninth avenue "L."

He enjoyed this healthful little walk after the confinement of the office, and besides, by taking the train at South Ferry he stood a better chance of getting a seat. And every day as he passed a large office building on Broadway there emerged therefrom a young woman of about his own age, soberly clad, and to Charley's eyes exceedingly beautiful. There was an air of efficiency about her, too, which to a person constituted as Charley Fosdick was added greatly to her attractiveness.

The fair and efficient unknown was always accompanied by an older woman less plainly dressed, but the young New Yorker from Oakdale, who was a close observer and a good judge of values, was willing to bet that the fine clothes of the older woman cost less than the plainer ones of the younger. The couple followed the same route as Charley—Broadway, Bowling Green, Whitehall street. He watched to see what then became of them and found that they entered the Staten Island ferry house. This conjunction of time, place, route and persons had been going on for some time before either of the persons concerned noticed it, but as soon as they did it became the usual and expected. Charley always watched the entrance of the office building as he approached to see if the plainly dressed young lady was emerging and the plainly dressed young lady always gave a swift glance up the street to see if the young man was on time.

They neither bowed nor spoke, of course. But they became quite like old friends after a while. At last the barrier fell; it fell with a little handbag which the young lady carelessly let fall and which Fosdick picked up and restored to her with his best bow and a few well-chosen words to be rewarded with a bow and a smile. After that the young lady bowed when they met; then it became a "how do you do" and, after a long while, the youth negotiating his approaches slowly but skillfully, he was permitted to join the young lady and her companion in the daily descent to the ferry.

The ice having been broken, both the young people plunged in head over heels. Charley used to think it quite a little walk, but now, no sooner had he turned into Broadway from Wall street than he found himself at the ferry.

The young lady called herself Miss Susan Knox and introduced her companion as Miss Stetson. She talked freely enough—but when Charley came to think it over, the fact that she was employed in the office of the Smithson estate was about all the information regarding her that he had acquired. Whereas he realized that by skillful questions and leading remarks she had extracted from him the most minute details of his private affairs as well as all the information he could afford with regard to the business of his firm. Regarding the latter she seemed strangely curious—and Charley was as wax in her hands. He asked permission to call; but had to be content with "Well, not just now—later, perhaps."

They were getting perilously near the "Susan" and "Charley" stage when something happened. "What's been the matter with you all the week?" said Miss Knox suddenly one day as they were passing the Standard Oil building. "Things going wrong at the office?"

Charley glanced at Miss Stetson. Susan said something to that guardian dragon under her breath and she dropped behind. "The fact is," said Charley, "I think I'll throw up my job." And then he told her that from things which had come under his cognizance in the course of his office duties he believed that Old Man Jameson had been using the firm's money to speculate with and was about due for a smashup that might wreck or cripple the concern. He had bought heavily of T. P. & Q., which had gone down five points and gave signs of going still lower.

"And you think," said Miss Knox at the end of the recital, "that if T. P. & Q. went up so that Jameson could break even with the market he would draw out and replace the money he has-er-er-borrowed?"

"Yes, for this deal," replied Charley, "but Lord knows how soon he would be in on another."

"Well, you'd better keep your job a while," said she. "Here we are at the ferry. Good day."

The next day T. P. & Q. began to go up. It rose steadily all the next week until it was two points above where Jameson had bought it. On the day the stock reached that point Charles Fosdick had the shock of his life. Miss Knox and Miss Stetson appeared at the office of Catherwood & Robbins and were shown in to Old Man Jameson's private sanctum, and Mr. Catlin, chief of the office staff, a veteran employee whom Jameson had always kept down, was sent for. When the two women finally left the office they were shortly followed by Jameson, who looked neither to right nor left as he went out. Then came out of the private office Mr. Catlin, who posted up a notice to the effect that Mr. Jameson having resigned, Mr. J. Catlin was appointed manager in his place.

Miss Susan "Knox" was Miss Susan Catherwood. Her two brothers, choosing to live most of the time in Europe, had given her power of attorney for the affairs of Catherwood & Robbins, to be used only in case of need, they having every confidence in Jameson. The Smithson Estate consisted of dwelling houses and other buildings left to Susan by her mother. Susan, being of a business turn, managed this herself, keeping for the purpose a little office in the building from which Charley had seen her emerge. Miss Stetson was her secretary.

Charley went down Broadway the day of Susan's visit to the Catherwood & Robins office with his head in a whirl. No Miss "Knox" met him; but Miss Stetson did, and acidly commanded him to accompany her to Staten Island. There, in a fine old house overlooking the Narrows, Susan explained matters to him.

"As for Jameson," she said, "his judgment of values was sound, but T. P. & Q. was raided by the bears. However, I got two of my brokers at work and we squeezed the shorts. This allowed Jameson to pull out and make good. But as I didn't propose to have him using the firm's money for speculative purposes I let him go. I propose to keep a closer supervision of the firm's affairs after this, so I shall not be able to handle the Smithson estate. How would you like to take my place?"

No, they were not married at once—it was not until Charley had managed the Smithson estate for a year. And it was two years before the name of the Wall street firm was changed to Catherwood & Fosdick.

Costa Rican Funeral Gay Affair.

The native Costa Rican is an inveterate lover of pleasure and never grudges a day missed from work if he can obtain entertainment by such self-denial. The common people get pleasure even from a funeral, which they always turn into quite an event, with music and a general gathering of friends. The Costa Rican is a born music lover, and almost anyone who can get possession of an instrument is able to play by ear. Small country funerals are usually preceded merely by an accordion player, who squeezes out any tune that comes into his head, ignorant of the names of all.

Why He Had to Steal.

Judge—How could you be so conscienceless as to steal the watch of the doctor who had just prescribed for you?

Prisoner—Well, yer honor, I was in a bloomin' fix. Yer see, his prescription read "a spoonful every hour," an' I had no timepiece.—Boston Transcript.

LINK BY LINK

One of the strongest fraternal organizations in the world has as its symbol the linked chain which shows the strength to be found in unity. Buying where you live from those who are your neighbors will forge a linked chain of strength that will build up your home district.

Yet, there is another story about the linked chain. It is as strong only as its weakest link. When you send your dollars out of your district you weaken the chain and imperil the prosperity and advancement of all its inhabitants.

If you must go out of Bellefonte for certain needs—come to Altoona. Booster institutions, all of whom display the emblem of membership, are worthy to serve you.

Axe Mann.

The box social here last Thursday evening by the Sunday school classes of Mrs. W. S. White and Mrs. J. C. Gferer was a grand success. The total amount realized was $73.95. There was no expense, everything being donated. The boxes all brought good prices. Home made ice cream, fudge and cake was sold. The peanuts, chewing gum, Zig Zag and pop was donatad by Bond White, local merchant. The young women wish in this way to thank all those who so kindly helped and they have decided that after Bond plans to have the knot tied, each will throw a stone in his garden as they pass by it.

John Brown and son Paul, who are employed at Monument, spent Sunday with the Brown family here. Misses Adeline and Eleanor Weaver spent Saturday at Oak Hall.

Mrs. Harry Brown, of Tyrone, visited last week at the John Brown home.

John Smith, of Penn Hall, visited over Sunday at the Arthur Sunday home.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Hoover and children visited over Sunday with Grandpa William Hoover in Green valley.

On Wednesday evening of last week in honor of the birthday of Clayton Walters, his children planned to surprise him. Being called from his home for a short time, he returned to find the following jolly crowd in possession: Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Woomer, Mr. and Mrs. James Sommers, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. White, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Gferer, Mr. and Mrs. W. Fultz, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Hughes, Mr. and Mrs. Epley White, James Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Ray White and daughter Jean, Mrs. Curtis White, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rhoads and daughter Arline, Mrs. Florence Morrison, Mrs. E. E. White, Robert Neff, Frank and Dorsey Corl, Pearl and Blanche Hoover, Adeline Sampsel, Mark Williams, Mack Weaver, Boyd Sampsel, Kathryn and Helen Markle, Clevey and Emory White, Harold and Donald Benner, Floyd and Paul Weaver, Alice Rhoads, Marie Gordon, Russell Garbrick, Elizabeth Hasgen, Chas. Rhoads, Blanch, Margaret and Emanuel Walters, Joseph Stover. Elegant refreshments were served and the evening was a most pleasant one. Mr. Walters received many gifts and happy returns of the day.

Oak Hall.

Our merchant R. J. Lowder and wife are all smiles over the arrival of a little girl last Sunday.

Glenn Zong purchased a new Ford touring car recently.

Mrs. Waldo Homan and son Paul, of this place; Mrs. George Homan and daughter Marjorie, of Boalsburg, spent a few days among relations at Tyrone last week.

Mr. and Mrs. George Lohr and family accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Howard Frazier, of Linden Hall, spent Sunday visiting at the Jacob and Ed. Zong homes.

William Raymond, our local grain and coal dealer, made a business trip to Osceola to secure coal.

Mr. and Mrs. Clell Garner and family, of State College, were callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Reish.

Mrs. E. C. Radel spent a few days with her daughter and parents at Millersburg recently.

Miss Mary Garbrick, of Shingletown, spent a few weeks at the Charles Whitehill home.

A sledding party from Shingletown and Branch was entertained at the L. K. Dale home last Thursday evening. Those present were the S. B. Wasson, E. W. Hess and the D. B. Thomas families and Mrs. Ralph Thomas from Hickory.

Newsy "Y" Notes.

Dormitory rooms in the Y for six young men are being fitted up and as soon as the furniture and bedding can be secured, they will be ready for occupancy. The house committee will be glad to receive donations of articles of furniture and bedding, especially single iron beds.

The ladies are asked to meet at the community room in the Y Saturday, 2 p. m. to participate in another Hit-and-Miss party. The library is being well patronized and a number of new books added.

An especially attractive program will be rendered at the Y Little Theatre on Friday evening. Cogswell, the magician will entertain with his magic, Miss Fleming will give humorous readings and impersonations and the Keystone Players will give Olyphant Down's delightful fantasy "The Maker of Dreams."

Gasoline Tax Large.

Collections on gasoline tax made by the state government in Centre County during the period from Sept. 1, 1921, to Nov. 30, 1922, were reported as $21,264.31. The total in the state was $2,908,981.78 of which $917,924.82 was returned to the counties. Collections in nearby counties were given as follows: Blair, $42,011.65; Huntingdon, $13,567.55.

LOSE FORESTRY SCHOOL

Transfer Important Branch From State College to Mt. Alto.

Governor Pinchot has advised the board of trustees of State College that the present course in forestry at Penn State should be transferred to and consolidated with the State forestry school at Mt. Alto. The transfer would really become necessary owing to the reduced appropriation for State College provided for in the Pinchot budget, as submitted to the Legislature. The Governor, however, stated that the consolidation would be advisable as a practical proposition. Before making his announcement, the Governor held an extended conference at Harrisburg last Friday with Dr. Thomas, president of State College. Governor Pinchot said:

"There is no use for two professional forest schools. The Mont Alto school has by far the best outdoor equipment for teaching forestry in the United States. Moreover, it trains men directly for the state service. I already have suggested to the board of trustees that it is unnecessary to maintain a professional forestry school in State College and, accordingly, involve a waste of state funds.

"Woodlot forestry is going to be a very important part of agricultural teaching in all agricultural colleges some of these days. It is mainly undeveloped, and I suggested to Doctor Thomas that Pennsylvania State easily might establish national leadership in that line, and that I would be delighted to help all I could."

Basket Ball.

The Bellefonte High school basket ball team was defeated by the Philipsburg High in the latter town on Friday evening by the close score of 24--21. Bellefonte held the score at the end of the first half, having 13 points to Philipsburg's 9. Philipsburg's team was then changed about and they managed to nose out a victory.

The Bellefonte Academy team has been playing more games than usual. On Friday night they played the High school at Ebensburg and won, 38 to 15. In the Bellefonte armory on Saturday evening, they again defeated the Bucknell Reserves from Lewisburg, the score being 31 to 23. Wednesday evening in the armory they were in a novel contest with the All College Girls basket ball five and won by 38--19.

The Bellefonte "Y" and the Normal School five from Lock Haven staged a good game last Thursday evening on the Bellefonte Y. M. C. A. floor. The score was close at all times and finally ended in favor of the Lock Haven team, 28--26.

Spring Mills girls basket ball team defeated the Lock Haven High school girls at Spring Mills on Friday evening, the score being 9--7.

In a game between the High school five and a picked team from the faculty, played in the "Y" gym on Monday evening, the score was 24--5 in favor of the High school team. The game was played to secure a fund to present to Elmer Carlson, an Academy student, who had his left arm broken in a practice game last fall.

May E. Hoy Dead.

May Elizabeth, daughter of Henry and Susan Hoy, of Pleasant Gap, died Tuesday at 4 a. m. from dropsy. She was born in Bellefonte and was eleven years old on Jan. 14th. Clarence E., Franklin, Carrie, Theodore, Howard, Beatrice, Budd, all at home, and the parents, mourn their loss. She was always a delicate child but possessed such a sunny disposition that all who knew her loved her. She was a faithful member of the Lutheran Sunday School. Funeral services were held this Thursday afternoon and burial made at Pleasant Gap.

Mrs. Bridget Kane Dead.

Mrs. Bridget Kane, a former resident of Bellefonte, until the death of her husband, about 35 years ago, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Thomas Canty, in Altoona, on Sunday morning from infirmities due to her advanced age. She was 87 years old and a native of Ireland. Three daughters survive as follows: Mrs. R. D. Houp, of Philadelphia; Mrs. Canty and Mrs. Mary Wilson, Altoona. Funeral services were held on Tuesday morning and burial made in Calvary cemetery in Altoona.

Death of Child.

Audrey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Poorman, of near Milesburg, died Monday morning. She became ill on Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. She was one year old on Sept. 7th. Beside her parents, she is survived by one brother, Russell, and two sisters, Ida and Ethel. Burial was made in Trexlyulny cemetery on Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Anna G. Heisey Dead.

Mrs. Anna Guelich Heisey, Clearfield County's oldest resident, died on Saturday, in her 107th year, at the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. Don Gingery, of Clearfield. Her father was born in Germany and was 82 years old when he died. Her mother was born in Milesburg and reached the four-score mark before passing away.

Durbin L. Gray Dead.

Word was received in Bellefonte the early part of the week of the passing away of Durbin Laurie Gray at the U. S. Veterans hospital at West Haven, Conn., on Sunday. The deceased was well known to many in Bellefonte, being a son of Durbin S. and Mary Laurie Gray. He was born here and was almost 37 years old. Four months before he was born, his father was called from this life. He studied engineering at the Pennsylvania State College and was one of the engineers who laid out Camp Dix, N. J., making marked progress in his chosen profession. He served over seas in Co. C, engineers, recruited in Philadelphia, and was in France two years. While engaged in building roads and bridges for front line attacks, he was gassed and this brought on a diseased condition of his lungs. He was treated at Mont Alto and, this failing to produce a desired change in his condition, he was taken to the veterans' hospital at West Haven. His fight to regain his health was in vain and his mother, who realized the seriousness of his illness, was at his side when the final summons came. Besides his mother, he is survived by his widow, a Wellsboro girl he married upon returning from France. The remains were brought to Bellefonte Tuesday and taken to the home of Miss Myra Humes, on Allegheny street, where funeral services were held on Wednesday afternoon. Burial was made in Union cemetery.

R. H. Zerby Dead.

Robert Homan Zerby, a partner in the Lauderbach-Zerby Wholesale Grocery company and a leading citizen of Philipsburg, died at his home Tuesday morning. Only his closest associates knew he had been ill. He went to a convention of wholsale canners in Atlantic City on January 21 and contracted grippe. He recovered sufficiently to return home on Friday and was about on Saturday but did not go to his office. Pneumonia developed and he was in a critical condition on Sunday and Monday, steadily becoming worse in spite of the best professional treatment. Mr. Zerby was an industrious worker, careful executive and manager, so that his services did much toward making the Lauderbach-Zerby company a success.

Mrs. Wilbur C. Miller Dead.

Mrs. Eliza Jane Miller, wife of Wilbur C. Miller, of the Chemical Lime company plant at Buffalo Run, after an illness extending over a year, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Frank Ray, on Sunday afternoon. Deceased was the daughter of Jacob and Eliza Albright and was born in Penns valley, April 26, 1859. She is survived by her husband; one son, Chas. O., of Coleville; three daughters: Mrs Henry, Tressler, Rock; Mrs. Wm. Garrety, Coleville; Mrs. Frank Ray, Chemical; one sister, Mrs. Samuel Breon, Pine Grove Mills, and two brothers: Samuel, of Cedar Spring, and Joseph, of Boalsburg. Funeral services were held on Wednesday afternoon from the Ray home by Rev. Reed O. Steely and burial made in the Shiloh cemetery.

Ira Lyle Dead.

Ira Lyle died at his home near Lemont on Sunday from infirmities due to his advanced age, he being 76 years, 7 months and 1 day old. He was a veteran of the Civil war and for many years had been employed in the Keller woolen mill at Houserville. Six years ago he moved to the home near Lemont. His wife preceded him to the grave three years ago. Surviving are the following children: John and Mrs. Sarah Houtz, at home; Bert, at the Branch; Emanuel, Spokane, Washington; Alfred, State College; Mrs. Annie Rosenberger, Pleasant; Mrs. May Shreffler, Lemont. Funeral services were held this Thursday morning and burial made at Houserville.

C. F. Kilpatrick Dead.

C. F. Kilpatrick, father of our townsman, Dr. J. J. Kilpatrick, died in New York City last Thursday morning from infirmities due to his age. He was about 72 years old. He and his wife had frequently visited with Dr. Kilpatrick and family. He is survived by his widow; one son, Dr. Kilpatrick, and one daughter, Mrs. Edna Snyder, of Detroit, Mich. Burial was made at Connellsville Sunday. Dr. and Mrs. Kilpatrick attended the funeral services.

Mrs. Margaret Myers Dead.

Mrs. Margaret Myers, widow of the late Samuel Myers, died in the Masonic home in Elizabethtown last week and the body was brought to Bellefonte on Friday for burial in Union cemetery. Mrs. Myers had been at the Masonic home for a number of years. For many years the family formerly resided in Milesburg and were widely known in that section. Two children survive as follows: Harry, of Bellwood, and Miss Iva, of Oakburn, Chester county.

Sant Wilson Dead.

Sant Wilson, employed for many years about Bellefoute as a teamster and at laboring work, died in the Bellefonte hospital Thursday afternoon. He had been in the hospital since before Christmas as a medical patient suffering from complications. He was 66 years old and leaves one sister Mrs. Nancy Ross. Burial was made in Union cemetery on Saturday afternoon.

FINANCIER'S BOLD STROKE

William C. Durant Makes Sensational Jump in Stock.

William C. Durant, apparently crushed by those who opposed him in his financiering methods and who made their best stroke in 1919 when they forced him from leadership of the General Motors, which was taken over by Du-Pont interests, staged a comeback that is the sensation of Wall St. His announcement that he would take the entire common stock of the Fisher Body at $200 a share was followed by that stock jumping seven points at the opening of the New York Stock Exchange on Friday. It took $100,000,000 to take over this stock. In less than four years following his apparent defeat at the hands of his financial opponents, Durant has single-handed worked to a point where he can defy them successfully.

Durant's recent activities in connection with a "unit" system he devised as part of his "come-back" led a powerful financial group of the street to hammer stocks he was buying. The recent drop in Fisher Body was a sign of this. Durant Motors lost ground as well.

The fortune Durant lost when prices crumbled 2½ years ago, he re-won single-handed. Refusing to remain a director of General Motors after the Du-Pont interests forced him from the leadership, Durant organized the motors company that bears his name. He sold stock to his friends at $15 a share which recently sold at $83 in open market.

As the Durant Motors corporation became successful, its founder branched out into new lines, forming other companies. Recently he advised his unit system of stock sales.

Buying large blocks of stocks, he sold to small investors in fifths of shares, transactions backed by suitable guarantees which provided considerable profits both to Durant and the "unit" buyers.

A Wall St. group declared war this week and hammered Fisher Body, which Durant was buying. His response was to offer to buy the entire common stock issue at considerably more than its present market value. As General Motors represents automobiles using Fisher Body products extensively, the offer will not be accepted.

HELP FOR GIRLS WHO WORK

Mrs. Lodic Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her

Tyrone, Pa.—"A friend told my husband how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had helped his wife, so my husband bought me a bottle because I was so run-down, had a nervous weakness, no strength in my body and pains in my left side so bad that I could hardly do my work. Before I was married I used to work in the factory, and I had pains just the same then as I have had since I have done my housework. I would not be without a bottle in the house now. It has stopped the pains all right and I have found out that it is a wonderful body builder, as it has made me well and strong. It is going to be the 'old reliable' with me hereafter, and I am always willing to tell other women how it has helped me. You can use this letter as you wish as I can honestly say that my words are true."—Mrs. M. LODIC, R.F.D. No. 4, Box 40, Tyrone, Pa.

Letters like this bring out the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. They tell of the relief from such pains and ailments after taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

DISCREET LOUNGING ROBES; FROCKS OF KNITTED FABRICS

EVERY one is familiar with the type of lounging robe pictured here—nearly everybody owns one. It makes its simple and direct appeal on the score of comfort, since it is a staple affair which changes very little from year to year. Some modifications of the collar, cuffs and pockets, or variations in color, as certain colors are emphasized by the changing seasons, are the nearest approach to innovations which this useful garment adopts.

But it has kindred that take thought of comfort first and then allow themselves to excursion into the realm of style and adornment. There are lounging robes of quilted satin, others of changeable clocky satin, many of corduroy and further elegancies in broche and in chiffon velvet. Where warmth is not of importance, albatross cloth serves the purpose of the lounging robe. In all the showier materials the item of color is important and decorative features are introduced. Lines are less simple in the richer fabrics, but the garments are so designed that graceful lines do not sacrifice comfort.

No longer is the knitted frock an experiment. It has established itself as one of the happiest apparel possessions of womankind.

Wear a knitted frock where you will, at the office, for shopping, on the beach, for sports, at home, to school, in rain or shine, and it will not wrinkle, but is ever in readiness for the occasion. A virtue sufficient to popularize it through the realm of fashion is that the knitted dress or suit is slenderizing to stout figures and becoming to slender.

Particularly interesting are the frocks, suits and separate skirts created of knitted fabric. With the introduction of materials machine-knit of wool yarn or silk mixtures, which can be bought by the yard, milady can have a knitted frock individualized to her type. Home dressmakers, too, welcome the opportunity of being able to secure knitted yardage. A favorite knitted fabric called trelaine is especially desirable in that it is silk and wool in chameleon colorings. The frock shown to the right in the accompanying illustration is of tomato-colored trelaine with changeable silk surface of red and light blue. Wool embroidery repeats the colors of the panel which reveals the silk surface in fascinating glimpses.

The little miss of this picture, who looks as if she had just stepped from the school room, is wearing a blouse and skirt made of knitted skydrift fabric. The blouse has a monogram plate for embroidering initials, for this is quite the latest idea. The closed V-neck fastens with clasps. The blouse can be unbuttoned to allow the wearer to slip it on and off easily.

ONE DOG SAVES LIFE OF ANOTHER

Airedale Pup Rescues Setter That Falls Helpless on Railroad Track.

Cincinnati.—"Fritz," an Airedale pup, rescued "Major," a huge Llewellyn setter, from death under a Baltimore & Ohio passenger train at Colerain avenue.

Major and Fritz, both owned by Fred Thiele, a saloonkeeper, are inseparable companions.

The two dogs were playing on the railroad tracks. A rumble and a warning whistle, a flyer heaves into view around a curve 200 feet down the track. Fritz leaps from the path of the train, then looks back.

Major has fallen between the rails and is lying with his feet rigid in the air. He has been stricken with a fit and is paralyzed temporarily.

Harry Schramm, a barber, and Charles M. Hart, a mail carrier, rushed to the tracks, intent on rescuing Major, but Fritz beats them to it. He rushes to the spot where Major lies. Schramm and Hart are not 20 feet behind him.

Grasps Major by the Back of the Neck.

Fritz grasps Major by the back of the neck and with a desperate pull hauls him over the rail a few seconds before the train crashes by. Schramm and Hart, wonder struck, attempt to lift Major up but a warning growl from Fritz stops them.

Pausing only the fraction of a minute, Fritz again takes Major by the scruff of the neck and drags him down a declivity 75 feet to Thiele's saloon. There, standing guard over his companion, he licks Major's face, and in a few moments Major comes out of his coma. Hart and Schramm report the incident to a disbelieving crowd.

Eugene Weatherly, night chief of detectives, a dog lover, heard the story. All day he spent in locating Schramm and Hart, who reiterated the story of the rescue.

PASTOR'S HAT HALTS BLAZE

Astoria (Ore.) Preacher Uses Headgear to Beat Out Flames on Roof of Edifice.

Astoria, Ore.—Members of the First Baptist church congregation have just been told how their edifice had been saved from destruction in the great fire by the pastor, Rev. E. A. Gottberg, whose only apparatus was a battered felt hat.

Rev. Mr. Gottberg rushed to his church, located at some distance from the main fire area, as soon as he knew the fire was in progress throughout the city.

Mounting to the roof through a trapdoor he found that sparks had just ignited the shingles in several places. He pulled off his hat, beat out the first incipient blaze, scrambled along to the next one and beat that out and kept up his progress as fast as new fires broke out.

After four hours of single-handed labor he found the danger over and descended, having put out fires in more than a dozen places from the church roof.

"Shake a Leg," Cries Polly: Thief Flies Leaving Loot

Seattle, Wash.—"Shake a leg," a salutation from "Polly O," a parrot, prevented a burglar from making off with a sack of furs, jewelry and silk garments from the home of A. R. Rose. The family had retired, but left the front hall light burning. Gaining admittance through the basement the intruder had ransacked all floors. When he started to leave, the parrot in the living room spied the figure and greeted him with her pet expression. Thinking he had been trapped, the burglar dropped the sack and fled.

NEW TONIC MADE MY BOY HEALTHY

Cheeks Red as Cherries; Now Eats, Plays and Sleeps Fine All the Time.

WAS ALWAYS CATCHING COLD, WEAK AND FRAIL

"We think there is only one real medicine at our house," declared Mrs. Margaret Cox, "and the way I learned about it was this: My son had a cold and fever. A bad cold on his chest. High fever at night. He would roll from side to side, and I was up night after night with him. He was restless and fretful all day long. He would get smothery spells and could hardly get his breath. The medicines the doctor prescribed didn't seem strong enough to take hold, so at last I sent down to the drug store for a bottle of Hypo-Cod. I didn't have much faith in it, but I heard it was more powerful, and it surely is. I never saw its equal. It helped my son almost immediately. His fever left him and he began resting quietly. After the second bottle he began gaining weight. Today he is a strong, healthy boy. His cheeks are as round and red as cherries. All last winter I kept Hypo-Cod on hand and both myself and my husband kept toned up and free of wintry ills by using it as a tonic. It is fine for colds and fevers and it gives you strength to fight off sickness," declared Mrs. Cox, 374 Pacific Ave., Pittsburgh.

Nature can fight off any disease known and throws off winter colds, grippe, pneumonia, etc., easy when your system is in the pink of condition. Why not take Hypo-Cod right now? A stitch in time saves nine. (See formula and directions for home use on each bottle.) It costs no more than weaker, nasty-tasting, old-fashioned remedies. It works days and weeks sooner. Has a pleasant taste. All druggists sell Hypo-Cod, $1.25 per large bottle—or write Earle Chemical Co., Wheeling, W. Va. (Pay postman when it comes.)—Advertisement.

Fiction Eclipsed by Coast Guards

Saving of Human Life and Property Great Job of the Soldiers of the Sea.

LIFE IS FULL OF THRILLS

Cutters Saved Property Last Year Valued at More Than $67,000,000 —Discipline More Severe Than in Army or Navy.

Washington.—Soldiers of peace, but equally ready in times of war, the United States coast guard has completed maneuvers off Cape May, N. J., and is now ready for its winter's work. Many people connect the coast guard cutters with smugglers and prohibition violators, but, as a fact, the cutters have very little work to do along these lines. The bureau of internal revenue maintains boats to chase rum-runners, and the customs officials look after the smugglers.

The great job of the coast guard service is to save human life and property. Last year the property salvaged by the coast guard counted up to more than $67,000,000, or nearly seven times as great as the appropriation for its maintenance.

One of the big features of the work is the aid the service gives to sailors in Alaskan waters or off the Newfoundland banks, where doctors are scarce. In fact, many of the Alaskan natives never saw a doctor except the coast guard doctors, who introduced them to the value of vaccination and the proper care of infected wounds and other troubles.

Every fishing season during recent years a hospital ship from the coast guard fleet has cruised among the fishing boats of Newfoundland. The doctors and attendants climb aboard every ship, cauterize and bandage the wounds of the fishermen and remove to their own boat the more seriously injured and those who have been stricken by disease. The same thing is done in the Alaskan fisheries and in the fisheries of Puget sound.

The cutter service was created in 1790 by an act of congress inspired by Alexander Hamilton, first secretary of the treasury. It was organized then on the military basis it has ever since retained. Its officers are especially educated, with its men enlisted for from two to three years. They are subjected to discipline more severe than that which exists in either the army or navy.

The man of the coast guard must be a sailor in every sense of the word, and his training in active marine life lasts from his enlistment until his discharge. Hundreds of these men enlisted under British or Scandinavian colors during the World war to serve on blockade runners, but few of them returned.

Enviable War Record.

When the United States went into the war the coast guard was merged with the navy, and coast guard officers were scattered through the naval force as technical advisers. Others remained in command of the cutters, which became the most effective convoy ships in the allied sea forces.

The greatest single loss of the coast guard during the war was the Tampa, which went down in th Bristol channel with all of her crew. Previously the Tampa had saved a convoy by sending a couple of German submarines to the bottom, and from that time she was a doomed ship. The Yamacraw, one of the most famous vessels of the coast guard, paid off this score, however. She sank six submarines off the coast of Gibraltar.

Virtually all of the recruits for the coast guard service are men of some sea service before their enlistment—men who from instinct or inclination chose to dedicate their whole lives to the sea. The same is true of the men of the life-saving service, who were brought into the coast guard in 1915. The men lead thrilling lives, launching small boats in the heaviest seas in answer to distress signals.

Hardly a year goes by without three or four notable rescues being made by the service.

HOW ANTIQUES ARE FAKED

Genuine Furniture Is Taken Apart and One Piece Put in Each of Many Imitations.

London.—The methods by which thousands of persons are cheated annually through the sale by dealers of antique furniture, draperies and porcelain which are "faked," were shown recently when an antique dealer was brought into court charged with fraud.

During the trial it was declared that dealers sell thousands of pounds' worth of antiques every year to American tourists visiting England, and that probably less than 5 per cent of the purchases are real.

The methods of the antique dealers in faking their wares are carried out so skillfully that the experts differed widely in their opinion of many of the pieces brought into court. The favorite system of the crooked dealer is to obtain a genuine antique of a certain period, for instance, a chair. This he will take apart and reconstruct a number of new chairs of the same design, each one containing a section of the original chair. It was shown during the hearing that an antique bedstead had been taken to pieces, and that the 12 duplicates fashioned in accordance with this system had sold for $5,000 each.

In faking china the work is more difficult. Here the dealer must make copies conforming minutely to the original and bearing the maker's signature. This requires skill which few persons possess nowadays, and which easily baffles the experts.

It is estimated that 60 per cent of the antiques now being shown in London are not what they are represented to be.

Rooster Steals Ride on Engine's Tank Trucks

Canton, Miss.—The other day when Engineer J. R. Tate, of the Illinois Central railroad, arrived at Canton, he noticed a crowd pointing under his engine, and when it stopped he was shown a smutty, greasy, dirty but game little leghorn rooster, looking the part of a real hobo, perched on the tank trucks of his engine. True to the hobo nature, the rooster evaded all efforts to be caught, or even to have his picture taken, but took refuge in a drain tile.

PIGEONS FLY FAR AND FAST

Forestry Service Has Had Occasion to Acknowledge Their Aid as of High Importance.

The United States forestry service, not content with such modern fire spying and reporting equipment as airplanes and radio, has been experimenting with carrier pigeons. Recently, in an Idaho forest, a carrier pigeon was taken by a packhorse over mountains, kept at its destination overnight and released the next day. It was subsequently found that it took the pigeon exactly thirty minutes to cover the eighteen miles to its home coop. In another recent test the pigeon was sent to headquarters with a message asking for fire-fighting assistance. Soon after, however, it was found that the fire was under control. Word was sent by a second bird that the requested assistance would not be required, and it reached the central camp just in time to prevent the assisting expedition from starting.—Washington Star.

1,700,000 Leave Schools Yearly

Federal Board for Vocational Training Compiles Figures on "Not in School" Population.

MANY DROP OUT AT EARLY AGE

Out of Every 1,000 Pupils Entering the First Grade Only 580 Survive in School in the Eighth Grade.

Here's a problem that closely touches the entire population. What is your reaction?

Washington.—Child labor reform is becoming more largely a question of school attendance, and the federal board for vocational education has just compiled some figures on the "not in school" population. Each year, the board's figures show, some 1,700,000 boys and girls drop out of school from the fourth grade to the eighth. The bulk of them drift into the first jobs available and land in "blind alley" occupations.

"The battle against illiteracy, which is more and more taking on a federal scope, it is pointed out, links itself right up with the campaign for federal control over juvenile labor. Both are based on the broad policy of improving civic intelligence and of protecting and developing the children into healthy, intelligent and moral citizens.

Question of Federal Aid.

"But the child welfare workers point out it is neither fair nor reasonable to give federal aid to public schools in the states, unless the states on their part are all brought up to some uniform requirement of school attendance.

On the basis of the 1920 census, the federal board for vocational education tables show, the population of school age—between five and twenty years—numbers 33,250,870. Of these, 21,373,975 were returned as attending school and 11,876,000 as being out of school.

For the ages of ten, eleven, twelve and thirteen combined, 586,000 boys and girls were out of school, while for the same four ages some 8,000,000 were in school.

At the fourteen-year mark the abandonment of school increases rapidly. For the ages fourteen and fifteen combined the "out of school" boys and girls number 783,500. Of the sixteen-year-old children 971,100 were out of school, and 1,000,000 were in school, almost an even break. Of the seventeen-year-olds 1,200,000 were out of school, against 642,000 in school, almost two to one.

The bureau points out that the large facts developed out of the national statistics of school attendance are that as a social condition "we have nearly 12,000,000 in the ages five to twenty years who are not in school, of whom approximately 3,000,000 are in the ages fourteen, fifteen, sixteen and seventeen years, and nearly 5,000,000 in the ages eighteen, nineteen and twenty."

Leave School at Early Age.

The figures set forth that out of every 1,000 pupils entering the first grade only 580 survive in school to the eighth grade and only 140 to the fourth year of high school.

In 1922 a total of $14,770,000 was spent in the states on federally-aided evening, part time, and all day schools under the vocational education act. Of this amount, $3,854,000 came through federal grants; $4,514,000 was state funds, and $6,401,000 was local money. Nearly $3 was matched against each federal dollar in the aggregate expenditure under the act.

But movements are under way for expansion of federal subsidies for education on the broad theory that universal popular education has always been a basic prop of Americanism and that all have a right to a reasonable degree of educational training

WOMAN'S "TALK TANK" SMALL

Explanation Offered as to Why the Gentler Sex Is Acknowledged the More Voluble.

Why do women talk more than men? Dr. A. A. Brill, professor of psychology at New York university and well known psychoanalyst, told the National Association of Teachers of Speech why, at their convention at the university.

"There is no question that women are more voluble than men," said Doctor Brill, and, strange to say, none of the women delegates rose to argue with him. "Many discussions and explanations have been offered."

Doctor Brill offered one by Dactor Jespersen, the eminent philologist. It was couched very scientifically, but the meat of it is that woman's vocabulary is smaller and more centralized than man's, but always on tap. She can get at it very quickly, and does so frequently. Now, man's lingual abilities are scattered. He cannot always get at it in time to have a comeback ready for the wife.

BUT IT WASN'T JUST RIGHT

Lighting Expert, It Might Be Thought, Had Gone Just a Little Bit Too Far.

Yeats does not seem to have captured the enthusiasm of St. John Ervine, who writes in a recent book about professional people:

"He would spend hours over the lighting of a scene . . . This 'lime' was too strong and that 'lime' was too weak or there was too much color or there was not enough or the mingling of the colors was not sufficiently delicate.

"One day, when he had worn out the patience of every one in the theater with his fussing over the lighting, he suddenly called out to the stage manager, 'That's it! You've got it just right now!'

"'Ah, sure, the d—d thing's on fire,' the stage manager answered."—Los Angeles Times.

Bonehead!

Hubby did not like the appearance of the cook a friend had sent them, so taking his wife aside he said, "Don't hire her."

"But," remonstrated his better half, "just think of the reputation for cooking she bears."

"Never mind about her ability to cook she bears," said he. "We don't eat 'em, anyway."—Boston Transcript.

Where?

"Mamma, what makes the street car go?" loudly piped small Joan, much to the amusement of the passengers on the street car. Her mother quietly replied that the electricity made the street car go. While Joan twisted about in her seat, turning this unenlightening answer over in her mind, the car came to a stop.

"But, mamma!" she said, still puzzled, "where does the electricity go when the street car stops?"

My First Day Out Since the Accident

STARTED for work eight weeks ago, stumbled, fell, broke an ankle; been home ever since, mending.

My ÆTNA ACCIDENT POLICY has kept me in funds, however. Paid me every month at the rate of $50 a week. Would have paid the hospital, too, had I gone there. Now that I'm out, I'll get $25 a week until I can go to work.

You're a wise man and ought to investigate this ÆTNA proposition. When you learn the ÆTNA people have paid over 128,000 claims, you wonder how you've gone so long without getting a hard jolt from Old Man Accident, don't you?

ÆTNA-IZE

Play safe. No man can afford to pay out for sickness or accident today what he can't get back tomorrow.
